Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict

Conclusions on children and armed conflict in Iraq

1. At its 31st meeting, on 22 June 2011, the Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict examined the first report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict in Iraq (S/2011/366), covering the period from January 2008 to December 2010, which was introduced by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict. The Permanent Representative of Iraq to the United Nations also addressed the Working Group.
2. The members of the Working Group welcomed the report of the Secretary-General, submitted in accordance with Security Council resolutions 1612 (2005) and 1882 (2009), and the analysis and the recommendations contained therein met with a favourable response.
3. They welcomed the efforts made by the Government of Iraq to ensure the protection of children, in particular the commitment to adopt measures to criminalize the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict, the signing of the Convention on Cluster Munitions and the steps taken to establish an intergovernmental committee on Security Council resolution 1612 (2005) to support the United Nations monitoring and reporting mechanism on children and armed conflict.
4. They noted that, despite these positive developments, the situation regarding children in Iraq remained very serious and complex. Overall, the restrictive security situation had hampered the work of the monitoring and reporting mechanism in collecting and verifying information on recruitment and use of children, killing and maiming of children, rape or other sexual violence against children, attacks against schools and hospitals, abductions and denial of humanitarian access.
5. They further noted that, throughout the country, several million landmines and explosive remnants of war, including unexploded submunitions, were still posing a consistent threat to children, contaminating an estimated area of 1,700 square kilometres.
6. They expressed particular concern at reports that children continued to be recruited and used by armed militias and used as suicide bombers, and that a large number of children were being killed, injured or maimed due to suicide bombs and attacks on schools, markets and public places. They called for an end to recruitment and use of children by armed groups, and in particular called for an immediate stop to use of children with mental disabilities as suicide bombers.

7. They expressed concern at reports that children might continue to be recruited and used by the Awakening Councils (also known as the “Sons of Iraq”) and stressed the need for age verification procedures to preclude underage recruitment in Government-affiliated armed elements.

8. They encouraged the Government to follow up on commitments made to adopt additional measures to criminalize the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict by armed groups. They underlined the importance of granting, consistent with international law, the United Nations and relevant humanitarian organizations access to children held in detention facilities.

9. They expressed deep concern regarding the considerable number of cases in which children were killed or maimed in Iraq.

10. The Permanent Representative of Iraq:

(a) Expressed appreciation for the important role of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and her work on that issue;

(b) Noted that the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict in Iraq (S/2011/366) covered a three-year period over which the security situation had improved dramatically, resulting in a significant decrease in the number of civilian casualties;

(c) Expressed the view that Al-Qaida in Iraq, although of diminished capacity, remained the main source of threats to adults and children, and added that the situation in his country did not constitute an armed conflict, and that the improved security situation should be better reflected in future reports of the Secretary-General;

(d) Reaffirmed that there were no children in the Iraqi security forces, and stressed that the recruitment of children was not allowed in militias such as the Awakening Councils, which had been integrated into the Iraqi army and police;

(e) Noted that some facts described in the report, such as the recruitment of children by the Mahdi Army, were outdated;

(f) Expressed the wish of his Government to invite the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict to undertake another visit to Iraq.

11. Further to the meeting, and subject to and consistent with applicable international law and relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 1612 (2005), 1882 (2009) and 1998 (2011), the Working Group agreed to the following direct action.

Public statement issued by the Chair of the Working Group

12. The Working Group agreed to address a message to the armed groups mentioned in the report of the Secretary-General through public statements by the Chair of the Working Group:

(a) Expressing deep concern about continuing violations and abuses committed against children in contravention of applicable international law in Iraq, such as the recruitment and use of children, killing and maiming of children, rape and other sexual violence, abduction, attacks against schools and hospitals and denial of humanitarian access;

(b) Condemning in the strongest possible terms the practice of armed groups, such as Al-Qaida, of recruiting and using children, including those with mental disabilities, as suicide bombers, and calling for the immediate disbandment of its so-called youth wing “Birds of Paradise”;

(c) Strongly urging them to immediately halt violations and abuses against children as called for in Security Council resolutions 1539 (2004), 1612 (2005), 1882 (2009) and 1998 (2011), and to release all children remaining within their ranks.

13. The Working Group agreed to address a message to civil and religious leaders in Iraq urging them to publicly condemn the use of children, especially as suicide bombers, and to engage with the Government of Iraq, in cooperation with the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq (UNAMI), the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) and other child protection partners, to prevent any kind of violation and abuses against children in contravention of applicable international law in Iraq.
