4. They recognized the need to take into account the independence of South Sudan, which took place outside the reporting period, in the upcoming conclusions on South Sudan.

5. They welcomed the efforts made by the Government of South Sudan to ensure the protection of children through the adoption and implementation of the Child Act and the establishment of the Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA) childprotection unit in August 2010.

6. They noted the positive steps taken by SPLA to release children from its ranks and encouraged SPLA to renew its commitment to a formal action plan to end the recruitment and use of children, and requested that an updated framework for its implementation be developed as soon as possible.

7. They also expressed deep concern regarding reports of violations and abuses committed against children by SPLA, including killing and maiming in violation of applicable international law, sexual violence, abduction and attacks on schools and hospitals.

In addition, deep concern was expressed over the growing trend of inter-ethnic clashes leading to the abduction of, sexual violence against and killing and maiming of children, particularly in Jonglei.
